Produce - During the summer, the northern tomato crops play a key role in providing sufficient tomato supplies to consumers. Temperatures have been hot, but rainfall has been prevalent. Weather forecasts look promising for good development of future tomatoes. Since 2013, the average move for mature green large tomato prices over the next two weeks is a decline of 15.8%. California iceberg lettuce crops can experience some weather challenges also in the late summer. Over the last five years, the average move for the iceberg lettuce market in the next two weeks was up 15.3%. Idaho potato prices usually peak in mid-August.
