PRODUCT SAMPLING & CUTTING

Find the right product for you.

Presentation of new products for consideration as a potential new menu item or as an improvement to the current item in use.

Whether you are interested in the latest new food trends, improving the quality of an existing menu item, or looking for a low-cost alternative to what you are currently purchasing, our specialist team is an outstanding resource. Each month, our specialists get the opportunity to sample new products on the market. Our experienced professionals have the knowledge and passion to identify products that will help you achieve your goals.

Our specialist will meet with you to discuss your needs, will identify products to be tested, will procure samples, and will present the items at your facility so you can evaluate them. We will prepare the items on your equipment, using the same techniques your staff uses, so that it is an accurate representation of how the product will perform in your kitchen. The specialist will answer any questions you may have about the items sampled involving the handling of the product and of course the cost.
